The committee authorized Richard B Watrous of the American Civic Associato investigate the advisability of obtaining city cleaning week flags and buttons and accepted an offer by A. Brylawski to have displayed in the Brylawski theaters moving picture slides bearing the following announcement: "Help Make a Spotless Town. Join the Clean. City Crusade. In deciding to ask the Commissioners to suspend, during city cleaning week, the regulation governing the preparation of garbage and refuse for disposal, the committee acted on the policy that this would be the only practical means of ridding the city of rubbish. J. G. McGrath of the Park View Association was the author

Purpose of Request. If the Commissioners comply with the request, it will mean that citizens, during the clean-up week, will not have to dethat they can place the material in boxes or any suitable receptacles. Not only this, but, with the regulations suspended, the receptacles may be placed on the side-walks, in easy view of the collectors. There was some discussion as to whether the suspension of the regulations might not lead to confusion later on the part of citizens as to the kind of receptacles they are required to store garbage, ashes and refuse in, but the committee decided that the only way to get the city thoroughly cleaned would be to have suspended all regulations which might restrict the carrying on of the campaign. The decision to ask the public for funds with which to defray the cost funds with which to defray the cost of removing a part of the rubbish to be collected during city cleaning week grew out of the fact that the committee believed that the District con-tractor would not be able to handle all of the waste material.

Funds Needed in Fight.

An additional factor in the situation was the knowledge that many citizens cannot afford to pay to have refuse removed from their own premises. The committee reached the conclusion that $1,000 would be sufficient for the hiring of teams with which to remove rubbish that may not be hauled away through the ordinary channels or disposed of by citizens at their own ex-

The sum probably would amount to more than $160,000,000.

Senator Chilton of West Virginia introclaim against the federal government. Then he spoke in advocacy of his bill, concurred in the measure.

Not a Gift, It Is Asserted.

The West Virginia senator declared Virginia did not give the territory outright to the federal government, but transferred title to the government to the national convention was urged to suspend, during the campaign, April 15 to hold it as trustee for the benefit of all the thirteen original states. As West Virginia and Kentucky were then a part of Virginia, and were not within the ceded territory, he asserted these states had a right to share in Virginia's portion. Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin were carved out of the territory. The deed of cession was referred to as showing that the ceded land was to be considered as a "common fund for the use and benefit of such of the United States as have become or shall become mem-bers of the confederation or federal alflance of the states, Virginia inclusive." Senator Chilton explained that the reference to future members was made so as to permit Maryland, then outside the federation, to participate in the benefits.

Settlement Declared Opportune.

At this time when litigation is pending as to whether West Virginia shall share Virginia's old state debt, Senator Chilton declared it was opportune for the federal government to make a settlement with the thirteen original states.

"If ever in their history Virvinia and West Virginia needed their part of this trust, it is now," said he. "By the cession, Virginia made the federal compact possible. It is nothing but right and justice that the two states of Virginia and West, Virginia should now ask the federal government for a settlement of the trust property committed to its hands,"

There should be further legislation to define as criminal offenses specific acts which mark attempts to restrain and monopolize trade, so that those who honestly intend to obey the law may have a guide for action, and those who violate the law may more readily be punished."

Taft's Indorsement Applauded. The independent of President Taft brought general applause.

Senator Root was recognized after the platform had been read, and taking the speaker's stand seconded the resolution. Senator Root said he would confine himself to a single subject of the platform, the interference with the independence of the judiciary. We could change the tariff laws, questions of general public moment, he said, but the "eternal principles of justice can never be changed without degradation of the people."
